Chapter 1 by Alejandra

Alison walked to the nearest tree she could find. The officers were looking for her. So, she ran with blood on her sweater,bruises on her legs, and ran with a twisted ankle. She his behind a big oak tree, with poison on it. One officer named Bobby Steep, walked to the oak tree and looked around. Nothing. When he disappeared, Alison stopped breathing and gasped. She had blended in with the tree. Her face was brown, with black and gray streaks going all over her body. She turned and ran. Poison Ivy walked along her path, leading the officers in that direction.

Minutes later, Alison ran to her house slamming the door behind her. She gasped and ran to her room. Her room was small, but cozy. Her bed was near the window which was on the left, and her nightstand near her t.v which was on the right. She closed her door slowly and walked to her bathroom. She sighed and looked in the mirror. Alison wiped off the blood, so it wouldn't get infected. She then turned on the shower and waited for the water to get warm. She stood in front of the mirror, looking at her hair. It was turning red. She was changing, once again.
She got in the shower and stood there washing off all the blood and the cuts she had from running. Soon, they'll need her. Soon.
